Vaccine Policy Statement

At Village Center Pediatrics, we believe one of the most important services we provide is protecting children from life-threatening diseases through vaccination. In alignment with the recommendations of the American Academy of Pediatrics (AAP), we consider childhood vaccines essential to maintaining the health of both individual children and our broader community.

Our providers—Tammy Maschino, MD; Susan White, MD; Jessica Yocum, MD; and Lauren Adams, APRN-CNP—have made the collective decision that families under our care must fully vaccinate their children according to the recommended schedule.

We recognize that the decision to vaccinate can feel emotional and complex for some parents. Our commitment is to provide education, guidance, and support so you feel confident that vaccination is the best step you can take for your child's health.

Families who choose not to pursue full vaccination will unfortunately not be able to continue receiving care at Village Center Pediatrics. While this saddens us, we must uphold this policy to ensure the safety and well-being of all our patients.

Sincerely,

Tammy Maschino MD
